

PROCESS FLOWCHART

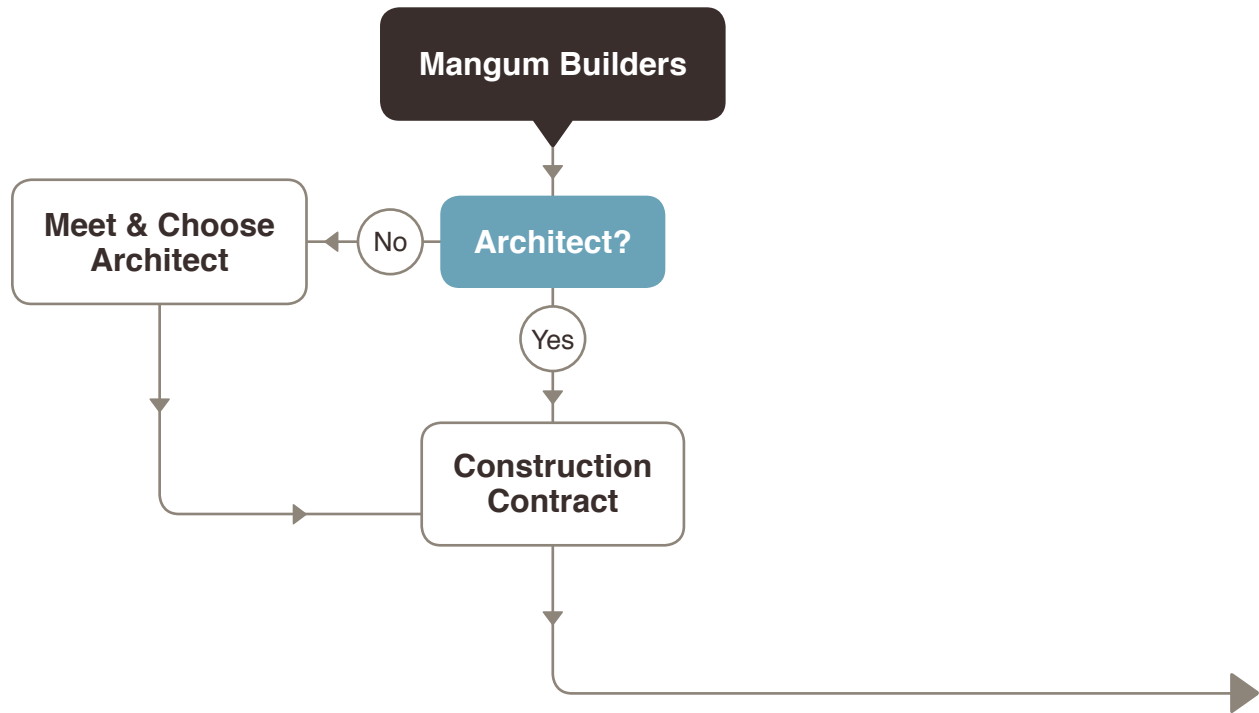

Home-building can be confusing. Use the following flowchart to help guide you through the process.

APRIL 2018

ARCHITECT & DESIGN

First step in the process is determining that creative strategy to help bring your home to life.

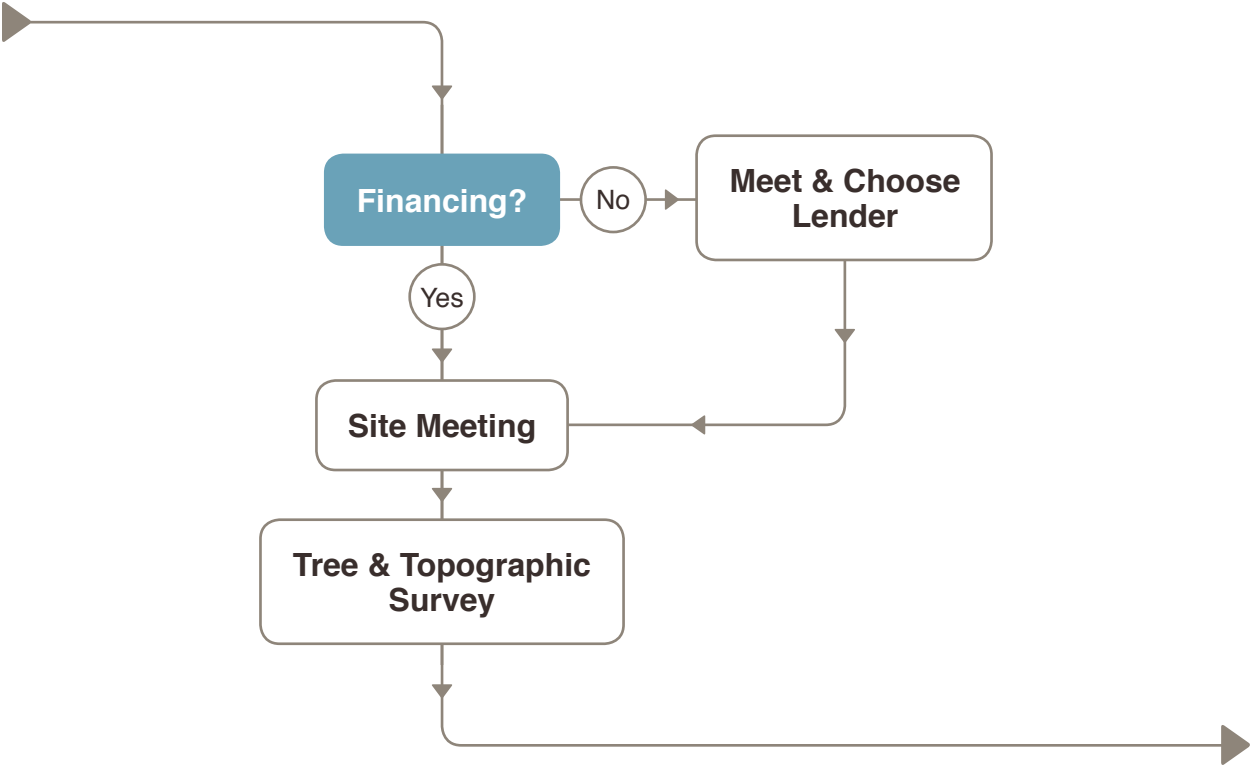

Creating your home is very personal. Working with a designer and architect, you are able to capture all of your daily habits, hobbies, tastes, relationships and expectations into a cohesive vision for implementation. These professionals will help analyze the personality expressed through those conversations and develop a design strategy that will suite your needs.

FINANCING & SELECTION

Planning for where your home will “live” and how it is being funded is elemental in new home construction or renovation.

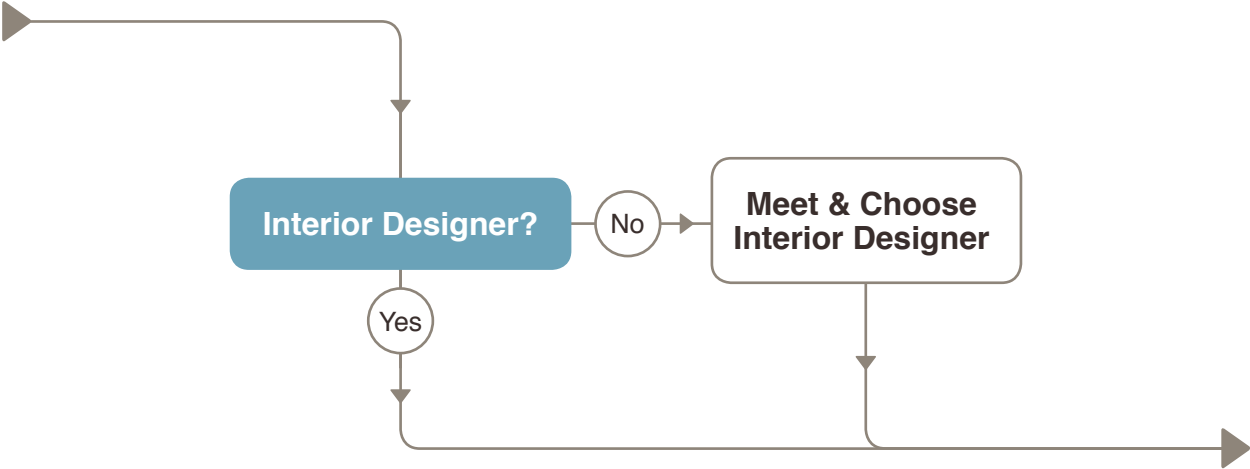

From purchasing of land to surveying for construction, having the proper financial infrastructure is imperative to finalizing the complete plan for your home building project. In securing the proper loans and understanding the specific boundaries for your location, your dream can materialize.

INTERIOR DESIGN

More than wall colors, window treatments, pillow patterns, finding the the perfect designer will allow for space within your home to be fully harmonious and work with the entire personality of the home.

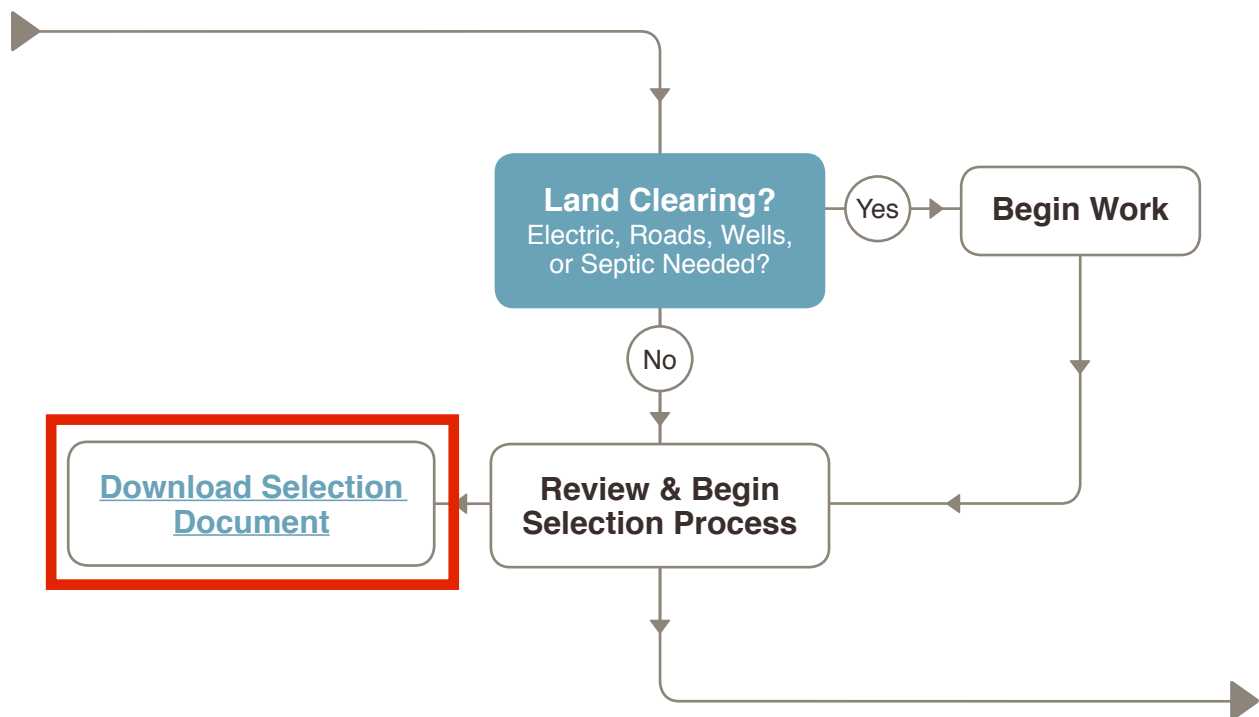

Interior designers, as perfectly stated by Houzz, “balances aesthetic considerations with structural planning to reflect the client’s lifestyle, set the desired mood, complement the home’s architectural features, and ensure that less glamorous details (like electrical outlets and air vents) fit into the scheme.” They truly create the relationship between you (the owner) and the home itself.

FOUNDATIONAL WORK & VENDORS

Step includes completely understanding your land, assets, interior needs and establishing your list of qualified products, vendors or services that will be implementing your vision.

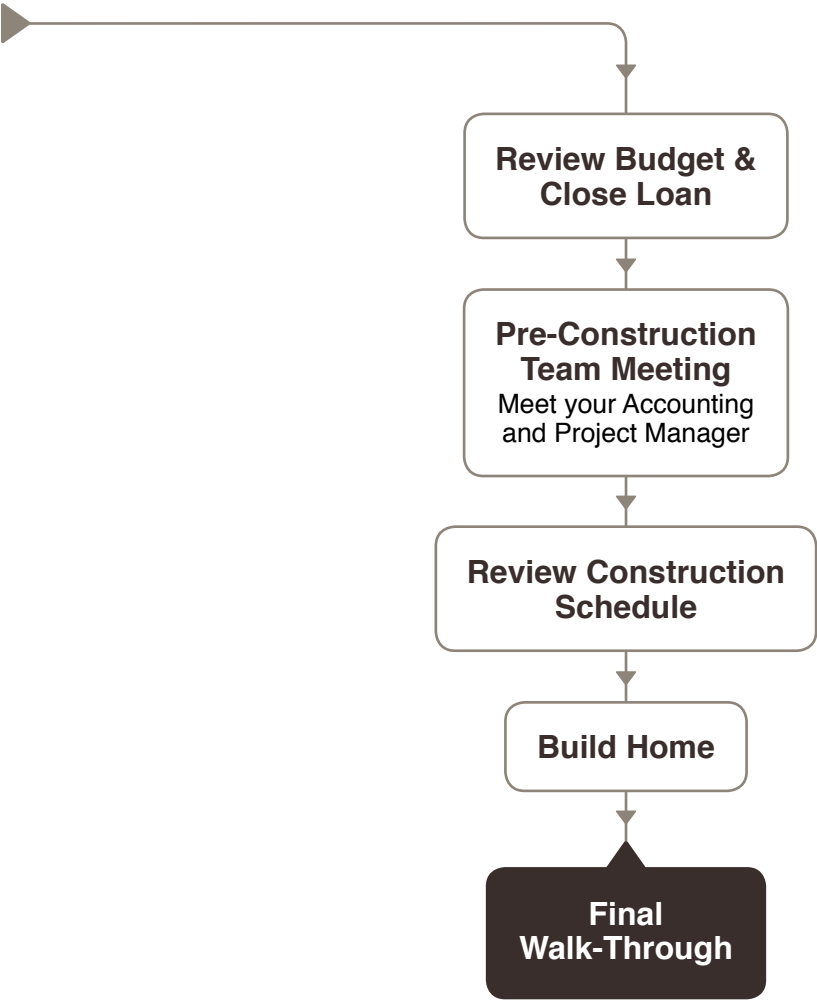

Step includes establishing your list of qualified products, vendors or services that will be implementing your vision, as well as exterior excavation with utility needs.

FINAL STEPS & BUILD

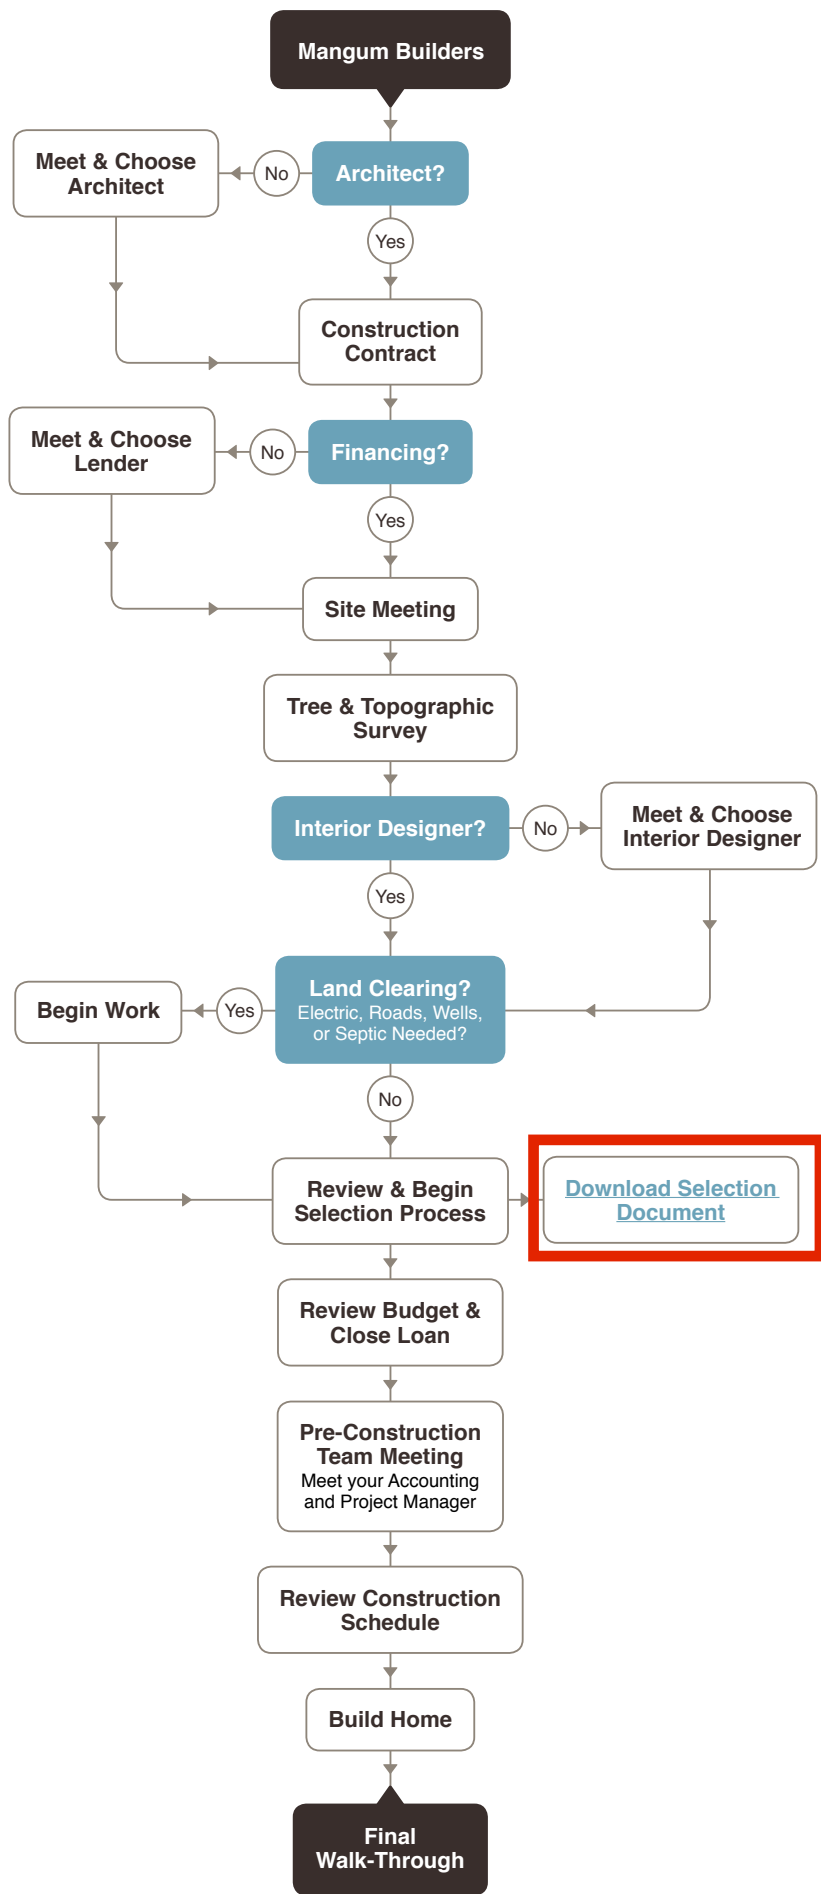

By preemptively doing all of the planning and processing upfront, you will have a much more effective and efficient home building and construction process.

Throughout these steps, continuous and constant communication is key to establishing comprehensive understanding between all of those involved in creating your dream home.

Our team is here at every step to make sure you feel comfortable at every milestone of the project and seek to exceed expectations on every level.
